Topic
I am learning about:	We learn about the four key theoretical frameworks, with a focus on how language creates meaning.	We study the full theoretical framework, putting them into practice against LFTD, and the set products attached to them.	In addition to the theoretical framework, we explore various academic theories, applying them to the set products to demonstrate understanding.	Film is primarily focused on industry aspects while marketing looks closely at representation and audience.	We learn about the video gaming industry and the way in which it engages with audiences.	We apply understanding of our learning to practical exercises in readiness for the NEA brief, which is released in September. By doing so, we recap the areas of the framework.
